

Press release
7 February 2008

CCLA SET TO BOOST THIRD SECTOR INVESTMENT INCOME
BY ADDITIONAL £10 MILLION BY THE END OF 2008

CCLA, the specialist charity, church and local authority investment company, has set out a new strategy, pledging to boost third sector investment income by an additional £10 million per annum.

At an event for clients and stakeholders last night (February 6) at the Tate Modern, CCLA's Chief Executive outlined the key requirements for charity investment in 2008.

The company will achieve the additional income by raising the yield on their core Investment Funds through improvements in their investment process and a higher income focus in their equity selection.

CCLA Chief Executive Michael Quicke said, "With the improvements we're making to our investment process, CCLA intends to boost the income of the Third Sector by over £10 million per year, growing in real terms."

Ends

Notes to editors:

CCLA (www.ccla.co.uk) is an independent investment management company owned by its charity, faith group and local authority clients. This puts it in a unique position to help charities achieve their aspirations and enable trustees to meet their obligations. Established in 1958, the company is the largest charity fund manager in the UK with 45,000 charity customers.

For further media information/briefing please contact:

Hilary Carter, PR for CCLA, Society Media

Contact email: hilary@societymedia.co.uk, or mobile tel: 0789 013 7074 or
Helen@societymedia.co.uk or Tel 020 8980 0013