

Global investor statement on workplace mental health

As long-term institutional investors, we believe that protecting and promoting good workplace mental health is a business imperative, relevant not only to a company's duty of care to its employees but also to its bottom line.

It is potentially material to long-term value creation and a relevant consideration when forming investment views on companies and sectors across global capital markets.

Employment can have a positive impact on mental health, and the principles good work¹ are proven to support good mental health, prevent new mental health problems from arising and help those with existing conditions to succeed in work.²

Effectively managing mental health in the workplace also saves money, through enhanced productivity, increased innovation, reduced absence to sickness, and lower staff turnover. In the UK alone, Deloitte found an average return of £5.30 for every £1 invested in workplace mental health interventions.³

We recognise the mutual benefit to investors, businesses and society of taking action on mental ill-health in the workplace. We therefore call on the companies in which we invest to consider the business risks and opportunities associated with mental health. We ask that business performance is optimized, through the elimination of avoidable costs associated with mental ill-health and efforts to create the working conditions under which every individual can thrive.

As responsible investors, and consistent with our fiduciary duty to our beneficiaries, we will seek to use the findings of the CCLA Corporate Mental Health Benchmarks to encourage companies take the following actions:

1. Acknowledge workplace mental health as an important consideration for the business and for its employees.
2. Signal board and senior management commitment to promoting mental health in the workplace, recognise the link between mental health and 'good work' principles, and encourage a culture of openness on mental health.
3. Publish a commitment to workplace mental health in a policy statement (or equivalent) together with a description of the scope of this commitment and of the governance and management processes in place to ensure the policy is effectively implemented and monitored.
4. Set objectives and targets to improve workplace mental health.
5. Report annually on progress against the company's mental health policy and objectives.

We invite other long-term investors to join us in signing this statement.
