Market update

The UK was singled out by the IMF as having particularly weak growth prospects compared to other major developed economies, with a forecast for GDP growth in 2022 of 3.7% and for 2023, just 1.2%. Newly released labour market statistics showed a further fall in unemployment, down 0.20% to just 3.8%. The number of job vacancies, at almost 1.3 million, far exceeded the number of people looking for work and not surprisingly, wage levels increased – by an annual rate of 4.0% for regular pay and 5.2% for total pay. However, inflation continued to rise, with the latest CPI data showing an increase of 7.0% over the twelve months to March, up from the corresponding figure of 6.2% the previous month. Higher nominal earnings were therefore not enough to allay fears of the rising cost of living, and UK consumer confidence plummeted to levels not seen since the 2008 financial crisis. The latest inflation reading also set the foundations for a fourth consecutive increase in interest rates at the Bank of England's May meeting.
